

THE SPIRALING COST OF ORDER

A Hedge at a Discount

It's the Sprott Physical Silver Trust (NYSE: PSLV).

You can buy it just like any stock. And rather than being backed by paper claims on precious metals like most gold and silver ETFs, the PSLV trust only holds physical silver custodied at the Royal Canadian Mint.

Should the wheels come off the inflationary bus, the price of both silver and gold will rise significantly. But silver trades at a steep discount to gold – nearly 80 ounces of silver per ounce of gold – and in a real crisis scenario, that gap could narrow to 20 or less.

At a 20:1 silver to gold ratio, you can exchange that silver for 4 times the amount of gold that you can buy for the same amount today. And with the price of both forms of money rising, your return in dollars could exceed 10x on the trade.

So, to hedge yourself from the incessantly higher cost of maintaining order, consider buying shares in PSLV. Because whether they raise the debt ceiling or mint a $1 trillion dollar platinum coin, the end result is the same.

Disclaimer: No financial advice is given or implied. Publisher is not a registered investment advisor or stockbroker. Information provided for educational purposes only.

Trading involves risk of loss and may not be suitable for everyone. You should carefully consider whether trading is suitable for you in light of your age, income, personal circumstances, trading knowledge, and financial resources. Only trade with money you can afford to lose. There is no guarantee that you will profit from your trading activity. Past performance is no guarantee future results.